Dear Paul,

As you will see in the enclosed letter, I seem to have struck oil with the former President. I guess the next step is to work out the time and place and send him a formal invitation. It appears from the letter that you can work out a time and place with John Taylor at his office.

Sincerely,

William J. Casey

Dear Bill,

I can't think of a better way to spend Halloween than to join you and your colleagues at the annual dinner of the Pumpkin Paper Irregulars. I will use your speech as a take-off point for my own remarks!

I would greatly appreciate the opportunity of having a visit with you particularly since I am making another trip to China in September and will probably be visiting some other countries in the Pacific area. The next time your schedule brings you to New York I would appreciate it if you would have your secretary inform John Taylor in my office so that I can benefit from a first hand briefing from you on the countries I plan to visit. As soon as I finalize my schedule, I shall send a memorandum to you indicating the countries I plan to visit and would appreciate the Agency's evaluation of the major leaders with whom I will be meeting and of current U.S. interests in the area.

Pat joins me in sending our very best regards.

Sincerely,

Rich

The Honorable
William J. Casey
